Journalism and Mass Communications, BS

Pratt Community College

Since 1903, we've been teaching journalism. We've also been teaching students to be curious, questioning, hard-working and ethical. KU's William Allen White School of Journalism and Mass Communications was founded on traditional values of journalism education – writing and editing. We're known for that. We also are recognized as one of the most innovative schools in the country. Our curriculum builds on our past and prepares graduates for the challenges of the multimedia world.

The KU School of Journalism and Mass Communications offers a Bachelor of Science in Journalism and Mass Communications degree, with four unique concentration options: Digital Marketing Communication, Advertising and Public Relations, Media Arts & Production, Multimedia Journalism, and Sports Media & Society. The program prepares students for careers in advertising, corporate communications, integrated marketing communications, news, writing and editing, management, and sales in traditional media and emerging and converged media. Please note, the Bachelor of Science in Journalism and Mass Communications program is offered in a traditional classroom format, with few options for evening/online courses.

This transfer guide provides important information and a sample four-semester plan for a student starting at Pratt Community College and transferring to KU for the remaining coursework. However, each student's background and goals are unique. Thus we recommend ongoing communication with an advisor in the KU School of Journalism. See contact information at the bottom of this page.

School of Journalism and Mass Communications Admission Requirements

1

Step One: Admission to the University of Kansas

All incoming students must first gain admission to the University of Kansas. Admission applications to the University of Kansas may be completed online at admissions.ku.edu. Gaining admission to the University of Kansas requires the submission of official college transcripts from all previously attended colleges/universities. Please note that indicating "one of our concentrations on your application to KU does not grant you entry to the KU School of Journalism and Mass Communications. For scholarship consideration, we encourage you to apply to KU by February 1st prior to the fall/summer semester or November 1st prior to the spring semester you plan to transfer to KU.

Step Two: Admission to the KU School of Journalism and Mass Communications

Applications who indicated a "Journalism and Mass Communications Major" are directly sent to the J-School. Transfer students should apply after they complete the minimum admissions requirements (see below). In the instance that one or more of the pre-admission criteria has not been completed before transferring to KU, that student will be considered a Pre-Journalism student in the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences until they meet the minimum requirements to apply.

Requirements to Apply to the KU School of Journalism and Mass Communications:

1. Complete/enroll in 24 or more transferable credit hours with a 2.5 transferable GPA or higher, and
2. Complete/enroll in JMC 101 equivalent by application period,
3. Earn a C or higher in JMC 101 (if JMC 101 is in-progress at time of application, admission rescinded if a C or higher is not earned).

Students who have completed Journalism courses beyond JMC 101 with less than a 2.5 Journalism GPA will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Admission is competitive. If the School must set an admissions quota, students with the highest grade-point average will be accepted.

Additional Notes for Transfer Students:

- Transfer credits with earned grades of D+ and below will not satisfy School of Journalism requirements. Transfer credits with earned grades of D+ and below will still be included in the GPAs for School of Journalism admission consideration.
- Only 18 transfer journalism hours can be applied to the 48 hour of journalism needed to graduate.
- A bachelor's degree must include 120 completed credit hours. A student may apply a maximum of 64 credit hours of community college coursework to a KU degree.
